FLOOR DEBATE

March 28, 2002 LB 791

SENATOR CUDABACK: Time. Thank you, Senator Chambers. Senator Tyson, on the motion to bracket.

SENATOR TYSON: Thank you, Senator Cudaback, members of the body. When I finish speaking I'm going to give the rest of my time to Senator Chambers. But I want to point out a couple of things to you. There is an advertisement on television advertising some sort of a snack food. And the young man who has this open bag of snack food is in a space ship and there's a monster there. And so he gives a little piece of this snack food to the monster and the monster eats it and smiles. And then he does it again and again, and each time he holds the monster off until he runs out of the snack food. Now where am I going with this example? I am the young, innocent-looking man with the bag of snacks and the monster is...you've guessed it...Senator Chambers. And I would leave you with this observation: Who sups with the devil, needs use a long spoon. The balance of my time to Senator Chambers, please, Senator Cudaback.

SENATOR CUDABACK: Senator Chambers, you have about three and a half minutes.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Thank you, Senator Tyson. And in this case, the devil is being enlisted in a heavenly cause. Members of the Legislature, once again, since all I'm doing is taking time, it doesn't matter how I spend it, but I like to give something in the way of information when I do speak. Why do I say horse racing, as one of the things I mentioned, requires dumb, stupid betters? Because you usually have at least eight horse in a race, I believe. Well, you've got to pick one horse to win, another one to come in second, another one to come in third. And the funny thing, one horse doesn't always come in first. A single horse doesn't always come in second. A single horse doesn't always come in third because they have dead heats. But, at any rate, you hear the term "parimutuel." That term is derived from Paris where it was Paris...it was Paris mutuel betting, or mutuel betting in Paris. Americans are Europhiles; they love anything from Europe. They worship it. They say (spoken in a French accent), "Ah, zeeh French people, zay go for zeeh parimutuel betting. I shall too." So then they get these
